Expressing Good Thoughts

This activity is designed to have students express good feelings and thoughts toward others in life and in work.

MATERIALS/SUPPLIES

Pen/pencil, paper, shoebox, glue, scissors, construction paper

ACTIVITY

Set up and decorate a "box of good reports and compliments" in your classroom.

Have students fill out a good report slip about someone who has been nice or helpful towards them.

Example: Joe said thank you when I gave him the ball. Sally is a good reader, etc.

The report slips can then be read out loud at the end of the school week.

EVALUATION

Evaluate students on their understanding that being nice and helpful towards others can have good consequences in life and in the workplace.
